Notes:

- If comments are to be moderated or if there is a delay between when they're posted to when they appear, the user interface should reflect this.

- Users will have the option of posting comments anonymously (05-03).

- Screens 05-02 thru 05-05 include actual comments taken from currently available applications. The size of these comments (and of the Lorem Ipsum text used elsewhere in this document) is typical of most of the other comments, so this appears to be a good indicator of relative size.

- Users can only comment one time on a given app. If they tap "add comment" when they've already commented, their previous comment will appear and they will be able to edit it. A duplicate will not be created.

- A button to "Add a comment" appears at the top of the comments list.

Junk. Why should I have to pay 24.95 to put mp3 on my phone. Other cell phones already have that option. The songs to download are not the real songs. It's to hard to put mp3's on there. You can't hear the mp3 very well. I missed several calls. I put the regular ring back on so I could hear it. I wasted my money. I don't even use it.

This is exactly what I needed to use MP3 ringtones. I have no issue with volume unless my ringer has a volume issue. I am so happy I could burst. Seriously it is a great program and worth every cent

Notes:

- This design presumes that there is a one-step process for sending applications from the web to the device.

- If there is no noticeable lag in the 'send to Nova' process, this step (05-03) is skipped; the process would then continue with 05-04.

List view

05-01

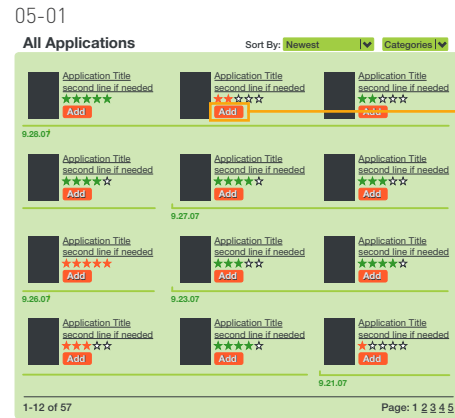

Each item in the list view (or detail view) has an "add" button next to it.

Items in queue

05-02

Clicking the "add" button adds that item to the queue. The queue shows how many applications and the total size of those applications ready to be sent. Clicking the minus sign removes items from the queue.

Sending to device

05-03

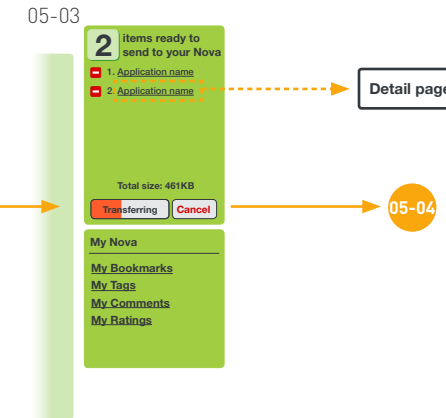

Clicking "Send to Nova" immediately begins the transfer process. A progress bar indicates the status.

Transfer complete

05-04

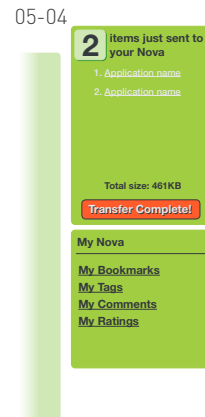

When the transfer is complete, the items that were just sent are greyed out and the minus signs are removed. Also, the copy at the top changes to reflect the apps that were just sent.

Empty queue

05-05

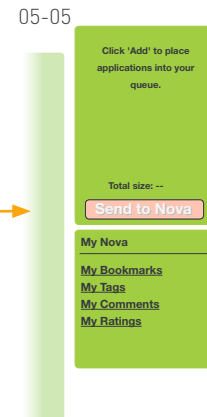

When a user clicks on "transfer complete" (or logs out and logs back in) the queue is empty until applications are added.

Transfer fails

05-06

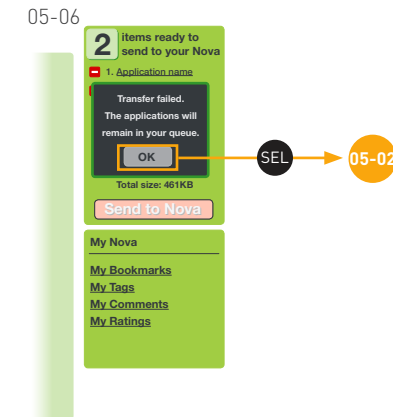

If a transfer fails, a message appears and the applications remain in the queue.

It's far from perfect. I would have been happy have a built in app I set per contact like most cell phones. In trial I had problems with voice recognition even after playing with sensitivity. Voice playback showed distortion and announcements were too low volume no matter what my volume setting was. Anyway, it does not work with Bluetooth, so what's the point?

R. Green    ★★★★☆    8.30.07
This is a pretty good program. Does what it says it does and best yet for a one time only charge. Has some problems with names that any person would also have a problem with. I usually only use it when driving, but, pun intended, it could be a real lifesaver. Never had any resets or problems with it.
